LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

BY MARGOT ARMBRUSTER

Salvete amici,

We may have returned to Wisconsin nearly a month ago, but part of me is still in Indiana. This year's national convention was an incredible, emotional week, and I'm struggling to sum it up in words. Looking back, I'm bombarded by vivid memories: Michael beating everyone at Cards Against Humanity, constantly getting lost despite always traveling in groups, the pizza man getting salty and pacing outside our dorm at midnight because we didn't tip him enough, Ram's epic tumble immediately after his election (#RIPpole), a sea of hands forming Ws as we waited for challenges to be arbitrated during Certamen finals.

When my school friends asked me what I'd been up to over the summer, I was struck by how utterly absurd convention seems from the outside. If I weren't part of JCL, the idea of anyone traveling for hours to scream cheers in and take tests about languages that haven't been regularly spoken for millennia would baffle me. But after my second national convention, I understand more than ever why JCLers keep coming back. Whether I was helping lead spirit cheers or playing Certamen, Wisconsin never failed to rally. Your enthusiasm and love were almost palpable.

After creating this issue of the Torch: WI, I'm incredibly excited for this upcoming year. I've read capable chapter officers' articles about their schools' plans, and I can't wait to see their ideas in execution. Also included in this issue are nationals results, articles by your WJCL First and Second VPs, and reflections from nationals Certamen players. I hope you enjoy my work, but, more importantly, I hope you're as inspired by the WJCL as I am.

Ab imo pectore,

Margot Armbruster

MADWEST UPDATE

BY FRANCES BARTOLUTTI, MADWEST LATIN CLUB PRESIDENT

Salvete WJCLers!

Though National Convention ended a month ago, the PCD is still strong. Luckily, there is plenty on MadWest's plate to fight it off until State in January.

Coming into this school year, MadWest has plans to create new merchandise. Ideas for crewnecks, stickers, and the like were just starting to bloom going into the summer. This fall we plan on picking up where we left off with those ideas as well as continuing with our sponsor t-shirt. We also plan to explore service. Finally, we will be attending a performance of Eurydice at the American Players' Theater.

In these first few months, it will be business as usual: recruiting new members, practicing for Certamen, coming up with first place spirit ideas (Cuius Casa? WEST HOUSE!), and continuing to improve our stellar constitution. Hopefully other delegations will be as busy as us; otherwise, the PCD will take over, and the WJCL will crumble.

MadWest looks forward to seeing all the wonderful things the WJCL will accomplish in these coming months and, as always, is grateful for the JCLove.

CERTAMEN REFLECTIONS

This was my first year in Latin and it was a blast! A few weeks into school Magis pulled me aside and asked if I'd be interested in "certamen". Not knowing what it really was, I went to my first practice after school one day and became hooked. Whether it was the intriguing trivia of the game or the food, I kept coming back. After my team won state, I figured I would be done for a while. That soon changed after I was placed on the Nationals novice Certamen team. After weeks of studying, we arrived in Indiana, and the competition soon ensued. As the first three rounds came and went, I had a great time meeting other teams and realizing how skilled they were at different facets of Latin. We eventually made it into the semifinals, where we lost, but that wasn't a defining moment of the competition. The moments I will remember are the ones in which other teams gave hilarious answers when they didn't know the correct one, or when our team studied as late as we could to get ready for the match the next day. I am truly grateful that Magistra Wallach got me interested in a new, interesting aspect of Latin I never thought existed. I am also proud of our team and all that we accomplished. We made so many memories we won't soon forget.

BY ERIK SUTTON, HHS NOVICE PLAYER

When I was first introduced to Certamen, I was only a few weeks into learning Latin for the very first time. My older sister somehow convinced me that answering questions about history, language, and myth would be a fun way to spend time after school. The more I practiced and studied, the more fun it got. Last January, I attended my first state convention and played my first "real" Certamen matches. Being part of an amazing team and winning state was an extraordinary experience. This fueled my team and I to study hard in preparation for nationals. When nationals rolled around, I was in awe when I saw all of the amazing Certamen players. After my matches started, it was very rewarding to see how much all of my team's studying helped us, and we moved on to semi-finals. The competition was amazing, and Certamen at nationals was so much fun. I can't wait for another great season!

This having been my first NJCL Convention, I was nervous about playing Certamen and representing Wisconsin; I learned, however, the beauty of our state's camaraderie. I played alongside a BA classmate, Vibhu Kolli, Alex Castroverde from Homestead, and Orion Jetzer from Madison West. It was a great experience to compete alongside Certamen players from different schools, because it encouraged teamwork and furthered my appreciation for the WJCL. Our team faced competitors such as New Jersey, Ohio, California, and even tough teams such as Illinois and Florida. Although our Intermediate team did not make it to semifinals, it was still wonderful to be able to play with my teammates against the other states. Our dynamic was great, and I hope it will resurface the next time we play together.

BY VICTORIA TOLEDO, BA INTERMEDIATE PLAYER

This was my first year in Certamen, and it was amazing. Meeting new people from my school, let alone people from all over the country, was an experience in itself. Even though my team did not do so well, Certamen taught me life lessons and, of course, random jeopardy answers. It also taught me to persevere. In our first round, we did not score any points, and we were all let down by that experience. But after that experience, we were on a roll, answering the questions like rock stars. Lastly, Certamen taught me to take deep breaths and relax. I felt so much WJCL love during the rounds when people were cheering us on and watching us. Certamen is an incredible experience for everyone to take up, even if you are not doing it competitively. Thank you all for the support this year! And thank you Magis, Mags, and all the other Certamen players for the amazing experience and the long studying periods to get me and the others where we wanted to be.

BY ALEX CASTROVERDE, HHS INTERMEDIATE PLAYER

It was great to play Certamen with Victoria Toledo, Alex Castroverde, and Orion Jetzer, and we definitely enjoyed it. Victoria and I were able to combine our knowledge with Alex and Orion to form a well-balanced team. Originally, it was daunting to play against hard teams, but as the round went on our confidence increased. So many people came to support us during the rounds, and their cheering encouraged us to do our best. Playing Certamen at my first national convention was a great experience, and I really enjoyed being part of the Intermediate Certamen team.

ADVANCED CERTAMEN RECAP

BY MICHAEL KEARNEY

This was—as I say every year—the most memorable Nationals Certamen of all time. Some have described it as “the perfect ending,” “going out with a bang,” and “silencing the doubters.” It was that and more.

The lineup:

Name	Position	Height	Year	School
Adam Abuhajir	Mythology	6-4	Sophomore	A.B.E.
Margot Armbruster	Grammar	5-6	Sophomore	A.B.E.
Michael Kearney (captain)	Mythology/History	6-2	Senior	MUHS
Ram Gollapudy	Literature	5-10	Junior	A.B.E.

(EDITOR’S NOTE: The Editor suspects that Ram is closer to 5-7 than the self-reported 5-10.)

The run-up: Hundreds of hours of preparation, studying, and practice are put in by Wisconsin’s Certamen teams every year—this year was no different. As such, we went into the tournament reasonably optimistic, but searching somewhat for answers.

Nerves were already shot by the time of the draw—that’s what having a national officer and a candidate for office will do to you. Nonetheless, we sent the luckiest member of our team, Adam, up for the draw.

Round 1: WI-IL-IN

Round 2: WI-TN-TX

Round 3: WI-VT-LA

Round 1: Practice and experience matter very little for Round 1. Everyone is nervous, everyone is jumpy, and the only way to fix it is to score some points. Although we admittedly lost the round, it was a close-fought battle – 160-155 to a tough Illinois team. Much more important than the score, however, was the confidence we received from putting up a solid number of points and the resilience we showed by staging a comeback in the final five tossups.

Round 2: Unfortunately, Wisconsin Certamen often finishes strongly but rarely starts well. This round proved to be different. Following 70 points in the first 5 tossups, we cruised to a confident 155-95 victory over Texas—a team we play every year but have never overcome. Perhaps this was the moment when we realized we had something special.

Round 3: After escaping from the last twenty minutes of my dinner, I made it to Round 3, suited and booted. The goal of the round was, quite simply, to score points—and score points we did. 18 tossups, 305 points, and, as we soon found out, the second seed. Our draw for semifinals: Texas and Massachusetts.

Semifinals: Texas and Massachusetts have been our bogey teams for a long time. Although we had finally beaten Texas in Round 2, there remained work left to be done. Again a strong start buoyed us forward—after 55 points in the first three tossups, we rode out 110-55-25 winners and into Wisconsin’s first final in more than a decade.

Finals: I think I speak for everyone when I say that this was an unforgettable round. Three of the first four questions were challenged—and that was just the start. Once more we began strongly, grabbing the first two tossups, but Florida soon put us under pressure. After Tossup 7, we were down 55-45. The question remained—how would we respond?

To answer in a word—brilliantly. This was a true team performance. Between 8 and 16, everyone grabbed a tossup and following 19, we were up 25 points—it seemed to be all over. However, that was not the case; Florida successfully challenged an earlier bonus and were suddenly back within reach. Despite this, we soon secured the victory with a challenge of our own and the celebrations began. Unfortunately, Ram and I had to run—literally, as we were forty minutes late for our colloquia sessions.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank one last time all the people who helped us earn Wisconsin's first championship in two decades.

Thank you to the writers, moderators, scorekeepers, and many others who made the tournament so fun and successful. Thank you to the Wisconsin coaches and teachers who have guided us throughout the years. Thank you to all the fans—your support in the finals and otherwise made us truly believe we could do it.

And, most importantly, thank you to the other teams and players. I will remember Certamen for, more than anything else, the innumerable friendships I have made—those last long beyond the final tossup.

Ave atque vale,

Michael

AGORA RECAP

BY KATIE MCCARTHY, WJCL SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT

The Wisconsin Junior Classical League 'Bazaar' was anything but bizarre at the National Agora this year. Spearheaded by the WJCL treasurer, Mark Bechthold, Wisconsin's table had not only Ludi jerseys, but also Ludi socks, hats, stickers, and wristbands. One could potentially wear an entire outfit of WJCL paraphernalia (maybe next year we'll sell Wisco running shorts). When the cries of "Wisco buddons" weren't heard, one would hear piercing shouts about the deals on Ludi jerseys: "One for $20, Six for $110". Using their bubbly personalities, other sellers went around the Agora, individually speaking to potential customers and making friends along the way.

Selling at the Agora also allowed people to bond with fellow WJCLers. Frances Bartolutti, current Madison West Latin Club President, sold at the Agora with Emily Catlin (graduated), former Brookfield Academy co-Consul. Reflecting back on fond memories, Bartolutti expressed, "Selling Ludi gear at Agora with Emily was a party. Also, shout out to Mark for the America outfit; those constitution pants were fabulous."

As for me, I loved spending time talking to new friends while explaining to people why Ludi Jerseys are an essential part of everyone's wardrobe. I also enjoyed collaborating with other WJCLers to try to figure out what color hat would be the best option: should you buy a hat that complements your hair color or the majority of your t-shirts?

All in all, making bank for our treasury can be loads of fun with good laughs and with great friends.

CATHOLIC MEMORIAL UPDATE

BY MICHAEL GINN, WJCL TECH COORDINATOR

ABOVE: ALL THREE CMH NATIONALS DELEGATES, ALONG WITH OTHER WJCLERS AND AN OJCLER, SANG "WAKE ME UP" AT THE TEAM TRIVIA AND KARAOKE EVENT. PHOTO BY DREW ALVAREZ.

To say the CMH Latin club had an exciting year is an understatement. For the first time, we have an officer on the board, won state Certamen, and, most recently, attended Nationals. We've truly grown from a club with ten members whose "president" was whoever walked in the door first. This upcoming year, we have a lot more in store.

First of all, we have a new board, led by Abby Zettel as president and Sam Kramer as first VP (and yours truly as tech co-for-life), and we're excited to get to know our new teacher and sponsor, Magister Sheaffer. Our incoming Latin I class is bigger than ever, so we can expect to keep growing. We're hoping to continue growing our presence in the WJCL by running more candidates for state office, attending more meetings, and maybe even hosting a meeting ourselves.

CMH has enjoyed expanding our role in the WJCL over this past year. We can't wait to see what this coming year will hold.

WAYLAND UPDATE

BY VALENTINA BUCCOLIERO, WAYLAND LATIN CLUB PRESIDENT

Wayland Academy has been in school again for 2 weeks. We've had four meetings so far this year, and the energy is very good. We have many fresh-faced first year students attending already, and some of our returning 2s, 3s, 4s have also joined the club. We've signed up to do concessions at three volleyball games as a fundraising effort for convention. We are excited for a new year and can't wait for the instructions for the war machine to be posted so that we can begin preparing for it along with our scrapbook, t-shirt, and Certamen teams. A REFLECTION ON SPIRIT

BY CALEB JUDGE, WJCL FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

Our costumes looked great, and we had plenty of people participating. For the most part, we were great. We cheered loudly and had plenty of energy. With that being said, we could have been much more successful than only receiving 3rd place one day. The goal is ultimately to win 1st every single day. This is, sadly, not entirely realistic, but this is how it must be thought about. To achieve this we need EVERY SINGLE PERSON to go hard at spirit. That means high quality costumes on everyone, cheering your voice box out for everyone, crushing Florida for everyone. Guys, I know we are capable of doing this. We have done quite well in the past, and I know we can do great in the future. Let's go Wisco. First place every day next year.

BROOKFIELD EAST UPDATE

BY SABRINA ZHONG, BROOKFIELD EAST LATIN CLUB SECRETARY

Brookfield East is gearing up for a big year! The board is currently planning a fall service project. Ideas include a stuffed-animal drive and cleaning up the Brookfield East Nature Center. Certamen practices are starting as well—watch out, WJCL! In addition, we're working with the Brookfield Public Library to start up Classics Week, which will take place in January. A display case has been reserved for one month, and a featured bookshelf has been reserved for one week. We hope to promote Latin to elementary and middle school students in this way.

BROOKFIELD ACADEMY UPDATE

BY JASON TAN, BROOKFIELD ACADEMY LATIN CLUB PRESIDENT

Starting last week, the Brookfield Academy Latin Club began planning for the upcoming year. The officers had a brief meeting to discuss the upcoming activities, especially service events like Toga Trick or Treating and more. In addition, the Advanced Certamen team led practices this past week, because it is never too early to start studying for Yale Certamen. Furthermore, the dedicated Dr. Roessler provided a study session for testing once every week, which was well-attended by underclassmen. With a strong senior-dominant leadership team this year, the BA Latin Club looks to continue its active role in the JCL community and hopefully inspire freshmen to carry the torch after we leave.

HOMESTEAD UPDATE

BY ANGIE MOYER, HOMESTEAD LATIN CLUB PRESIDENT

Homestead has some pretty cool plans for this school year! The usual Homestead Latin Club events (ice cream socials, Saturnalia party, Caesar salad spectacularum) will continue as always. Our board has been working together to make this year a great one, with new additions of social media and club events in the works. We have plans to increase connectivity between our middle and high school Latin programs as well, through visits by high schoolers and fun activities. Capture the Helen will be returning for its second year, and we are also hoping to start up another state-wide event hosted by Homestead! More information on those will be coming soon. I can't give it all away just yet, but this year is sure to be exciting!
